20th Sunday in Ordinary Time
Luke 12:49-53

There is a story about a brother who confronted his sister because he did not feel she was living her life properly. The sister became angry and walked out on her brother. She told him not to meddle in her life and he was dead as far as she was concerned. The brother had to find the courage to attempt to address and help correct her behavior despite creating a division in their family.

This is the reality of living a life with Jesus. There may be times that we voice the word of Jesus and are ostracized by our fellow men for doing what is right. We must not be bothered by the repercussions this may have on our lives. We must always have the courage to speak out and address unacceptable behavior no matter what the cost. This is part of our mission as the followers of Christ.

We are betraying Christ if we simply ignore wrongful behavior. We must never be afraid of creating an enemy for the sake of Jesus Christ. We may pay a worldly price, it may be painful, and we may lose friends and family, but we must carry out the word of Jesus.

We are only complete when we have Jesus in

As of mid-2021, there are more than 26 million refugees worldwide. Half of the world's refugees are children. This number does not include the more than 3.5 million people who have fled Ukraine since the beginning of the war. Please visit www.crs.org today to see how you can help!

Sunshine Corner

It is one of the greatest moments when we escape our intellectual reasoning of what should be and something takes us by surprise. Perhaps the smell of a flower, the sound of a wave, a bird singing, or the taste of a really good peach. Something that reminds us to take our daily bread and live in this moment, stand on the red X and be grateful and faithful of where we are right now in life. When we fear despair and sadness, we tend to not feel grateful. We must remember these emotions give us the opportunity to find something to be grateful for and search for help from Jesus. Hope is different from our hopes. Our hopes are just OUR hopes. Hope is the surprise that changes our lives and helps us build a foundation within us to trust life and trust God's almighty Plan.
