THE COMMAND TO LOVE

Love of God and love of our fellow man/woman is the basis of the spirit of the Old Covenant Law. The first three of the Ten Commandments addressed the obligation to love God above all else while the rest of the Ten Commandments addressed the commitment to love one's brothers and sisters in the human family. It is love that binds the two major sections of the Ten Commandments. We cannot love God, whom we cannot see if we do not love our neighbor, whom we see, and who God made in His image. Our First Reading is from the part of the Law of the Sinai Covenant called the "Book of the Covenant". This section of the Law is a collection of ethical and moral obligations that are divine commands concerning the stranger and the disadvantaged of society, including widows, orphans, and the poor. God commands the Israelites to be sensitive to the plight of the stranger and the needy because of their experience when they were defenseless strangers in Egypt. He orders the Israelites to demonstrate compassion not only out of humanitarian concern but by divine decree. God addresses the people in both the plural and singular in this passage. Therefore, God will hold His people accountable as a nation and as individuals. In the Second Reading, Saint Paul wrote to the Christians of Thessalonica that he is proud of the community's courage and faith. Saint Paul rejoices at the Holy Spirit's effect on the community through his missionary team's preaching. The Gentile converts have turned away from pagan idols to follow Jesus Christ and have become a model for all the faithful in Macedonia and Greece. In the Gospel Reading, a scribe and teacher of the Law asks Jesus, which is the greatest commandment from among the articles of the Law. Jesus' answer is from two passages in the Torah/Pentateuch (the first five books of the Old Testament). The first and greatest commandment He says is to love God with one's entire being, and the second is to love one's neighbor as oneself. In quoting these passages, Jesus is summing up the whole law upon which, He says, the Torah and the books of the Prophets are based. Jesus Christ upholds and fulfills the Old Covenant command to love God and neighbor in the New Covenant. Saint John wrote: We love because Jesus Christ first loved us. If anyone says, "I love God," but hates his brother, he is a liar; for whoever does not love a brother whom he has seen cannot love God whom he has not seen. This is the commandment we have from him: whoever loves God must also love his brother. If you do this, like the scribe Jesus praised, you are not far from the Kingdom of God in Heaven

Life question: Have you ever "lost control" in worship? How would you respond to someone else who did?

2 Samuel 6

Sunshine Corner

Someone recently asked me,
"What advice would I give my younger self?"

- I said, "I would have to think about that one."
- Maybe I would say it would have been OK to have cereal for supper on that day when I lost the battle of balancing work and family.
- Maybe I would say that the world would not stop spinning if I didn't volunteer for every booster club and event and stopped to realize busyness does not equate discipline.
- Maybe I would say I needed to manage my time in a way to impact eternity and focus less on what I see and more on what I can't see.
- Maybe I would say to run to God in prayer for spiritual healing and strength even in the midst of a demanding job, ailing parents, and a young child.
- Or maybe I am today because of who I was then.
- The truth is, I don't know what I would say, but what I do know is that I wish I would have begun walking this path of hope, faith and discipline a few miles ago.
